From the Gazette of the United States.

TOM PAINE,
Invited to this country by his Right Worthy and affectionate Friend,
T. JEFFERSON.

No. VII.

We beg leave now to call the reader's attention to a production, which, if we mistake not, will furnish a still later expression of Mr. Jefferson's continued hostility to our much abused and insulted constitution.

We refer to the address of JOHN W. EPPES, Esquire, to the people of Powhatan, Amelia, Chesterfield and Goochland, lately published in most of the newspapers. This Mr. Eppes offers himself as a candidate for a seat in Congress in the place of Mr. Giles. In his address, which is dated June 15, 1802, he sets forth at large, his claims to the confidence of the people, and explains what he supposes to be the views, and what, in his opinion, ought to be the aim of those, whom in the cant phrase of the day, he is pleased to call the Republicans. It is worthy of being remarked and remembered, that this young man, Mr. Eppes is the nephew and the son in-law of Mr. Jefferson. Mr. Jefferson has interested himself in the internal policy of Pennsylvania by giving the collectorship of the Port of Philadelphia to a man who was feared as the rival of Governor M'Kean, and for that purpose, by removing a gentleman whose official talents and conduct the merchants of the city, as well Democratic as Federal, have unanimously and publicly extolled: He has interfered in the internal concerns of the state of Delaware, by dictating to the people the person to be chosen by them as a representative in Congress: While a candidate for the highest office under the government he paid a person for compiling and publishing a series of the most false and infamous slanders against his competitor and both his predecessors. Mr. Jefferson cannot be supposed less desirous of promulging his sentiments and executing his schemes in Virginia, than in Pennsylvania or Delaware: He and his son-in-law would naturally suppose that the opinions expressed by the latter, on such an occasion, would be considered by the public as the opinions of both: these opinions would therefore be carefully examined and prudently expressed. It has been confidently believed, not without reason, that Mr. Jefferson penned the address. However that may be, it can scarcely be doubted, under the circumstances above hinted at, that the uncle, the father-in-law, the President of the United States was consulted in the affair, and that the address was not published without his approbation.

We shall proceed, therefore, without further hesitation or apology, to consider the address of Mr. Eppes as an expression of Mr. Jefferson's wishes, and of his sentiments upon public measures past and to come.

After some handsome compliments to Mr. Giles for his great exertions in the cause of democracy, particularly during the last session of Congress, and deploring his intended retirement, Mr. Eppes says:

'All I can promise to my fellow citizens, if I have the honor of succeeding him, is a steady adherence to principles, and an honest exertion of the little talent I possess, in aiding the great work of reformation so happily COMMENCED under our late republican congress.'

We shall see further on what this great work is, and in what manner it has been commenced. Mr. Eppes proceeds:

'It remains for the republicans to guard against a future violation of right, by introducing into the constitution of the United States, SUCH AMENDMENTS as will insure a complete responsibility of public servants. No barrier against oppression is so effectual as entrusting power for short periods. The only thing on which republicans can, with safety, rely is the wholesome corrective of elections constantly hanging over their servants. To REDUCE THE TIME of service of the SENATORS of the United States to the same period with [as] the House of Representatives, and to ABOLISH the system of CLASSING them, would introduce into that body the same spirit that pervades the lower house, and render them equally pure by reducing them to a dependence on those who elect them. To render the PRESIDENT INELIGIBLE after a certain period, until a term of years shall have intervened, would greatly lessen the danger which may at some period or other arise from the important powers intrusted to that officer.'

Here we are indeed presented with a great work of reformation; no less than a total destruction of our present system, by the abolition of some of the funddmental and most essential principles of the constitution. Here we find fully displayed, without disguise, those most dangerous doctrines which Mr. Jefferson when in France avowed, and which Mr. Paine, yet in France, promises, upon his return to this country, to endeavour to introduce and establish. "This fecod feature which I dislike and greatly dislike," says Mr. Thomas Jefferson, "is the abandonment, in every instance, of the necessity of rotation in office, and most particularly in the office of President." "I declare myself opposed," says Mr. Thomas Paine, "particularly to the manner in which, what is called, the Executive is formed, and to the long duration of the Senate; and if I live to return to America, I will use all my endeavours TO HAVE THEM ALTERED." Aye, replies the other Thomas, read our address to the people, signed by my son-in-law, and "you will find us returned to sentiments worthy of former times; in these it will be YOUR GLORY to have steadily laboured, and with as much effect as any man living. That you may live long to continue your USEFUL LABOURS, and reap the reward in the thankfulness of nations, is my sincere prayer." Returned indeed! and to sentiments very worthy of those former times when Jefferson recommended the rejection of that constitution which he and his faction now pretend to adore; of those former times when Paine wrote Ages of Reason, and dedicated them to his fellow-citizens of the United States; of those former times when this constitution was stigmatized with the contemptuous name of Lilliputian ties, and when the father of his country, with all the constituted authorities of the government. "The Executive power, the Judiciary power, and all the officers of government," were seditiously named an "Anglo-monarchio aristocratic party"; of those former times when this infamous letter to General Washington was written; of those former times when an officer of the government hired a needy adventurer to publish false and malicious libels against much greater and better men than himself, and to burlesque and calumniate the constitution under which he held his office.

But let us return to Mr. Eppes. He thus proceeds:

'To render the judges incapable of holding any other office during their continuance as judges, to vest their APPOINTMENT in CONGRESS, and to ELECT THEM FOR A PERIOD OF YEARS, would ensure a faithful discharge of their duties, by rendering them, like all other officers, amenable at stated periods to the public will.

We have now come to that part of "the great work of reformation so happily COMMENCED under our late republican Congress." We have seen above, that the executive and legislative departments of the government are destined to changes which will radically alter their nature. Next to the executive power, the judicial power is mentioned in the letter to Mazzei, as at the head of the Anglo-monarchio-aristocratic party which have fastened upon us these Lilliputian ties, and given us this copy, not quite so base as the original, of the form of the British government. It could not be expected, therefore, that, in this great work of reformation, so happily commenced, and for the completion of which Paine is called from Europe, the judiciary department would escape the fate to which the whole of that Anglo monarchico aristocratic party of which Gen. Washington was the head, is now doomed. We are here informed of the intended fate of this department, which forms the third and only remaining branch in our present system. The changes here contemplated will close the circle of reformation, and completely rid us of the trammels of that constitution which Mr. Jefferson, from the beginning, greatly disliked, which Mr. Paine has promised to have altered; and which Mr. Callender (writting for those who paid him) has declared was crammed down the gullet of America.

Contemplate this new judicial system. The judges to be made elective, and to continue in office, not during good behaviour (for good behaviour will be then unknown) but for a period of years!— This part of the great work of reformation has been happily commenced under our late republican congress. There is much portentous significancy in that word COMMENCED.—This department has indeed been shaken to its foundation, under our late republican congress: the country has been alarmed for the fate of the government: one class of judges has been torn by the merciless hand of violence, usurpation and tyranny from its hold upon the constitution. Yet the work is but happily COMMENCED; there are yet other judges, good and upright men, men of firmness, learned in the law, men selected for their stations by our departed Washington. They are not yet rendered elective, nor do they hold their offices for a period of years. While these things are so, the great work of reformation is but HAPPILY COMMENCED. Should the work stop here, there would yet be one department in the present system not utterly prostrated, but merely maimed and defaced. It would still bear some resemblance to the beautiful and solid fabric which was raised and sustained by the hands of Washington and of those who laboured with him, in despite of Mr. Jefferson and Paine, and others who greatly disliked it, and promised to use all their endeavours to have it altered. While this resemblance remains, Mr. Jefferson and Mr. Eppes "will unite with the Republicans" (for so, forsooth, every agent of destruction will needs be called, since Marat, Robespierre and Bonaparte have "happily" drenched the world in blood under the same title) "will unite with the Republicans in forwarding these amendments." This is the sum total of Mr. Eppes's claim to the confidence of his fellow citizens.

There is, alas! little room to doubt that these promises will be fatally fulfilled.—Unless God, in his mercy to a deluded and injured people, will be pleased to interpose and avert the impending fate, there is no hope for this devoted country. The arm of destruction is already raised: the aim is taken: the direction is clearly seen: the work is partly commenced: and the result is considered as so sure, that we are confidently and insultingly told, from the very cabinet, the particular parts on which the deadly blow is first to fall.

If Americans, who have known and enjoyed a Washington, and who might to the latest generation enjoy the fruits of his wisdom, his labor and his patriotism, by preserving inviolate the constitution he has left us, can look calmly at these daring attempts, and can, still, at every returning election, permit their councils to be filled by men who boast of the same intentions; if they will suffer the seats of power to be occupied by men whose hostility to our constitution, to our peace, to our existence as a nation, is thus rank and undisguised, we can only say further,

Exeat aula, qui vult esse bonus;
Virtus et potestas non coeunt:

Let every honest man seek refuge while he may; America has no place of safety for him.

It is not too late, though it will soon, very soon be forever too late, to urge to our countrymen what the immortal Burke urged with such earnestness to his, in circumstances somewhat similar. "It cannot," said he, "at this time be too often repeated; line upon line, precept upon precept, until it comes into the currency of a proverb, to innovate is not to reform. The French revolutionists complained of every thing; they refused to reform any thing; and they left nothing, no, nothing at all unchanged."

With the enormities of this revolution, and with the result of it also, before our eyes, can Ameticans quietly suffer their government, not a despotism like that of France, but a government of their own choice to be overturned, to be annihilated under the same deceptive pretence of "a great work of reformation?" If so, let them proceed to hasten the importation of Paine, to secure the election of Eppes and others of the same views, to encourage the violences which are happily commenced upon our federal compact, and their desires will speedily be accomplished by the introduction of civil commotions, which in due time will be happily terminated, as those of France now are, in a military despotism.

PHILADELPHIA, October 18.

On Saturday last, arrived the ship Philadelphia, Raser, 61 days from Leghorn & 41 from Gibralter. By a gentleman passenger in her, we learn: That a French fleet with 6000 troops had sailed from Toulon, given out, for Algiers; but it was said instead of going to Algiers, they were gone up the Medeterranean, and it was conjectured were bound to Constantinople or some part of the Turkish dominions—of this, or some other matter hostile to their interest, it is evident, the British are apprehensive, as an order was received at Gibraltar to stop all the British men of war, formerly ordered home, which was put in execution, as they came down the Mediterranean and arrived there. There also seemed to be some disagreement respecting the evacuation of Malta, as, it was said, none of the stipulations agreed to, by the treaty of peace, were complied with by the British.

The Brig Sally, Barry, sailed from Gibraltar for this port 4 days before capt. Barry.

Yesterday arrived the brig Sally, capt. Thackara, from St. Lucia, which he left the 26th ult. on which day a French fleet of five vessels, (brigs and schooners) arrived at Castius to take possession of the island of St. Lucia. The English having embarked all their troops, were to sail in a day or two, viz. the 9th and 10th, West India regiments for Trinidad, and the 52d and 53d regiments for Europe. Captain T. further informs that the brig Polly, John Paul 21 days from Portsmouth, arrived off St. Lucia, but finding the markets bad, proceeded on the 23d of September for St. Vincents.

Capt. T. left at Castius, brig Hannah, Norris, of and for Newport, (R. I.) to sail in about a week; schr. President, Ingersol, of Boston; the schr. Richard Curtis, Cateno, of George Town, and a sch'r. belonging to Edenton, N. C.

Capt. T. also mentions that Martinique was taken possession of by the French on the 15th and 16th ult. since when the French had prohibited the importation of dry goods in British bottoms. Two ships having arrived at Castius on the 24th ult. who had been refused an entry at Martinique on the 22d ult. The names of the two ships were the William Pitt, of Martinique. and the Margaret, of Liverpool.

Same day arrived brig Rover, captain Hardie, by whom we learn, that the Negroes having taken up arms again—General Rochambeau had mustered all the men he could, and marched against them: that about the 20th Sept. the French had one or two pretty severe brushes with the Blacks, in the neighbourhood of Petit Guaves, and Leogane, in which it is said the Blacks had 400 killed, notwithstanding which they keep the Town of Port Republic in continual alarm, as they are continually committing depredations in the neighbourhood, and prevent any supplies coming into the Town from the country.

Yesterday arrived, sch'r Fancy, capt. Wilson, from Nassau, (N. P.) who, on the 5th inst. off Abacco, spoke ship Neptune, Barker, from this port for New Providence.

Capt. Wilson informs, that on the 21st ult. the High Court of Admiralty, met agreeable to adjournment, and proceeded on the trial of four persons charged with Piracy, belonging to the sch'r Muskogee Mekko, Bowles's privateer, taken at Harbour Island. They were all four found Guilty, and sentenced to death, and were to be hanged the day after capt. W. sailed.

Arrived, ship Philadelphia, Raser, Leghorn and Gibraltar, 64 days; brig Sally, Thackara. St. Lucia, 19; Rover, Hardie, Port-Republican, 14; sch'r Chance, Davies, Cadiz, 50; Success, Tice, Norfolk, 5; Fancy, Wilson, Nassau, N. P. 13; sloop Hiram, Erenburg, Providence, R. I.

Brig Eliza, Melvin, from Cape Francois, is below.

The ship Philadelphia, Bernard Raser, master sailed from Leghorn 18th August having under convoy; ships Tamerlane, Emes, of and for Boston: Sally, Endicot, of and for Salem; sch'r Alert, Leonard, of New-York, for Malaga. Left no American vessels at Leghorn.

The U. S. frigate Boston, captain M'Neil, left Leghorn 30th July, with the ship Favorite, capt. Welch, of Boston, for Malaga. The frigate was to touch at different ports and convoy any Americans and Swedes.

August 27th, off Malaga, saw a fleet of 30 sail Americans and Swedes, under convoy of the U. S. frigate Chesapeake, commodore Morris, and schooner Enterprize, lieut. Sterret, bound up. Parted with schooner Alert, off Malaga.

August 28, arrived at Gibraltar with remainder of her convoy.

August 30, sailed from Gibraltar, at the same time brig Samuel, capt. Tubbs, for Malaga, schooner Factor, Maxfield, and a ship unknown bound up.

Left at Gibraltar, ship Sally, to sail the same day; ships Tamerlane, and Sally, and a brig capt. Wilson, of Charleston, S. C. to sail the next day, ship William, Butler, of Charleston, in two or three days, brig Agenora, Shoemaker, of New-York, for Liverpool, do. ship Phœnix, of Baltimore, to discharge, George Washington, of Boston, from Baltimore, discharging; ship Mary, captain Taylor, of N. York, sailed on the 29th July, bound to New-York; several other Americans at Gibraltar, names unknown. Off Cape Sparrel, saw two Portuguese frigates bound in.

A ship from the River of Plate, arrived at Newburyport on Sunday week, bringing letters to the 24th of July. This is supposed to be the vessel seen off the Capes of Delaware.

Virtue and patriotism have to lament, that Mr. Bayard has lost his election. So far, have the efforts of our worthy president prospered; thus has the first fatal example been given, of the successful interference of the Executive in the elections of the people. In a country valuing itself on its liberty, we have seen the First Magistrate descend to writing electioneering letters; we have seen him point out who are to be removed from Congress, and who are to be chosen in their stead. Mr. Bayard was early marked down in Mr. Jefferson's list as a dangerous man; his persevering industry and manly eloquence, "shook terror to the soul of" democracy. The state of Delaware was searched for an antagonist, formidable enough, to promise success. Mr. Rodney was at first solicited in vain; he was however prevailed upon to make a journey to Washington; on his return from that place, he was immediately nominated, with his consent, as the democratic candidate.

What kind of rhetoric, was urged to him at the seat of government, we do not pretend to know; but we think every discerning man will infer, from the immediate change in Mr. Rodney's determination, that some powerful motives must have been held out to him by Mr. Jefferson; something beyond a mere seat in Congress; the acceptance of which is accompanied with a great sacrifice of his private interest. Let the fact however be borne in mind; time will probably explain it. The following extract will shew, the manner in which the Delaware election was conducted; it is another proof of the purity of those men, who have arrogated to themselves the appellation of republicans.

Let men of moderation, & principle think of these things. Though the transactions occurred in Delaware, they are not less interesting to us; for they equally serve to shew the spirit that animates the party which aims at the subversion of those institutions to which we owe all our national and individual prosperity. Let then those who are desirous of seeing these flourish, unite in their exertions to check the progress of democracy: it requires nothing but determined minds and active exertions, to put an end to its vicious career.

DELAWARE ELECTION.

A very intelligent and well informed gentleman in Delaware, from whom we received a letter last evening, informs us, that though Mr. Jefferson has succeeded in the election of the candidate for Congress, by a majority of fifteen, yet that federalism is gaining ground in the state, and wants nothing but system to render it triumphant. The federalists in Kent county carried the whole ticket by a considerable larger majority than at any time since the formation of the government. In Suffex county also, they carried the whole by a majority larger than was given for the governor last year. It appears, that a religious sanctity contrived to keep back between two and three hundred federal votes. The newly imported Irish were invited to the election, and means were provided for conveying them from Wilmington to New Castle. They openly boasted, that tho' the law was against their voting, they had their republican governor, who would remit fines, and pardon offences. In order to secure the lower class of Irishmen and others, an atrocious libel was secretly circulated in printed handbills, by the Jeffersonian sect.

At New-Castle, on the morning of the election, three men, whose names are mentioned, at the head of two drunken negroes with fiddles, and others with fifes and drum, marched with a collection of Irish and apprentice boys armed with clubs, from a street near the river to the court-house. The Irish committee, with clubs in their hands, directed the attention of the cabal to a wheel barrow, loaded with POTATOES and HERRINGS, and a box of oysters for the well-born. In this manner the place of election was converted into a scene of riot, to the annoyance of many infirm and peaceable men, who, rather than encounter the difficulties thus set before them, actually returned home without voting.

The democrats had eight inspectors out of nine, and decidedly in their interest, and some of them violently so. In some instances votes not refused on former occasions, but known to be federal, were refused upon this, and the inspectors would give no other reason for rejecting them than that they were so instructed. In other instances, votes known to be democratic, were received without hesitation or interrogation, though the persons were foreigners who had never been naturalized, nor had they resided one year in the state nor paid a tax. Several residents of Philadelphia, transiently at New Castle, were suffered to vote. The cry is, "look to the end, not regarding means." I have no doubt says our correspondent, that if a scrutiny takes place, it will be found that Bayard has one hundred more legal votes in the box than Rodney.

LOGIC.

Young 'Squire Booby, just come from his first term at the university, was willing to give his parents a specimen of his improvement there. 'Father' says he, 'I can chop logic.' 'Ay' says his father, 'how it that, Tom?' 'Why,' says Tom 'here dye see father are a couple of fowls at table, I can prove they are three fowls.' 'How's that?' quoth the father. 'Why, there's one,' says Tom, 'and there's two,' pointing to one dish, and then to both 'and one and two makes three, father.' 'Well done,' says the father, turning to his wife, 'Tom's a conjurer; you take one fowl, and I'll eat the other, and let Tom have the third for his logic.'

Sept. 16. 2aw6t‡

To all whom it may concern.

A VERY extraordinary Notice appearing in the Alexandria Advertiſer of yeſterday, under the ſignature of Lucy Wilſon, "forewarning all Perſons from purchaſing from me or any other Perſon whomſoever, a NEGRO MAN SLAVE, by the name of POOL," I deem it proper to ſtate certain facts relating thereto, which cannot be controverted either by her or her Agent. Negro POOL alluded to, was left to my Mother by her Siſter, Mrs. Ann J. Gordon, along with the reſidue of her Eſtate, not eſpecially mentioned in her Will, and the only Negro therein left to Lucy Wilſon, is one ſhe now poſſeſſes, of the name of Lucy. Pool has been in my Mothers quiet Poſſeſſion for about twelve Years paſt, and is now my Property by Deed of Gift from her, dated July laſt. I ſhall now only further add, by introducing part of a Letter in my poſſeſſion, from one of the Executors, whoſe veracity will not be called in queſtion, of which the following is an Extract: "I recollect that in ſeveral converſations with Mrs. Gordon, while ſhe was ill at my Houſe, ſhe complained of ——'s cruel treatment of Pool, and ſaid ſhe had determined to keep the Boy, that he ſhould not be again in ——'s power; that ſhe had never given John Gordon a Deed for him, but ſhe would make Lucy Gordon amends for her taking the Boy back again, by giving her Lucy, Hannah's Daughter, and theſe ſentiments ſhe expreſſed at the time I wrote her Will. Pool was in Mrs. Gordon's poſſeſſion at the time of her death, and was afterwards inventoried and hired out as part of her Property. I related theſe circumſtances to Mr. Campbell Wilſon and Mrs. Wilſon."
